

Inle Lake is well known for its floating villages and gardens, traditional handicrafts and silk weaving, colorful markets, traditional method of fishing, the unique leg-rowing of the Inthas, the native lake dwellers.

Kyaikhtiyo the “Golden Rock” is a place of important pilgrimage for Buddhists. Rising 1100 meters above sea level, this small golden stupa stands on the top of a huge gold-gilded boulder.

Mrauk U is one of the best archaeological sites as its attraction. Unlike the temples of Bagan, Mrauk U's ruins are constructed with stone rather than the traditional bricks in a truly unique style.

MYANMAR (BURMA)

The nation, Myanmar known as Burma with owned a millennium of Buddhist civilization, a rich and vibrant cultural tradition, natural beauty combines with magnificent temple architecture. A country covered by mountains, jungles and paddy fields together with rivers surrounded by seas.

Bagan is capital of the first Myanmar Empire, one of the most wondrous sights in Asia and offers a rich heritage from a twelfth century. Now-a-day over 2200 Buddhist temples & pagodas are left in the open plains around the city. A visit to Myanmar would be meaningless without visiting Bagan.

Mandalay is the cultural heart of Myanmar. Mandalay's monasteries and pagodas are of great religious significance to all Myanmar.

Yangon (formerly Rangoon) is one of the charming cities in South-East Asia. Ever green and cool with lush tropical trees, shady parks and beautiful lakes. Today it remains the commercial capital of Myanmar. Shwe Dagon Pagoda (2600-year-old) is the most sacred of all Buddhists sites in the country, one which all Burmese hope to visit at least once.
